New Radio Show Highlights Hot Topics in Gun Rights

*This week's show examines...
...can you use guns to defend your family and property during natural disasters?*

Drawing on 23 years as a leader in the gun rights movement, F. Paul Valone is hosting a new show entitled “Guns, Politics & Freedom” on Sundays at 5:00 PM Eastern time as part of the “Sunday Night Political Power Block” on conservative talk station WFBT, 106.7 (Wilmington, NC), which streams live nationally at www.WilmingtonBigTalker.com

This Sunday (September 3), “Guns, Politics and Freedom” will examine what you may legally do to protect yourself, your family and your property during natural disasters such as Hurricane Harvey, and during civil unrest. GPF’s featured guest will be Alan Gottlieb, author of nineteen books and the Executive Director of the Second Amendment Foundation, which has litigated to expand your right to self-protection during states of emergency.

Recent “Guns, Politics & Freedom” episodes have included interviews with widely published concealed handgun researcher Dr. John R. Lott of the Crime Prevention Research Center, renowned defensive firearms instructors John and Vicki Farnam of Defense Training International, self-defense legal expert Andrew Branca (“The Law of Self-Defense”) and constitutional law professor Greg Wallace (“The Second Amendment in the courts: What comes after Heller?”).
